Walter's Plan To Up House Seats Favored

Special To The Daily Record
CONGRESSIONAL leaders last night were leaning toward Rep. Francis E. Walter's recommendation to enlarge the House to 439 seats, even though there was some strong sentiment to raise the number as many as 34 to 469 seats.

Among those favoring the higher number was Rep. Willard S. Curtis, R-Pa., who did not testify before a House Judiciary Subcommittee on Thursday, but asked permission to insert a statement in the record.

Another Pennsylvania Republican, Rep. Ivor Fenton, also offered a statement in the official record, but it did not spell out any definite number of seats. Fenton merely asked that the House be enlarged to meet the increasing population.

Huddles with Congressional leaders last night indicated that if the House were enlarged, the Walter proposal to increase by four seats stood the best chance. Pennsylvania would get the 43rd seat.

Walter, an Easton Democrat and representative of the 15th Congressional District, said he would not ask seats for any particular state, but merely would ask that the representation not be diluted by an oversight.

He explained that he thought it was necessary to increase the House by four seats to make way for the increase in the number of states to 50. He noted that the Senate immediately added four seats when Alaska and Hawaii were admitted.

Other Proposals
"I don't think the addition of four seats," Walter said, "will do the violence to the proceedings that is possible with some of the proposals that have been offered."

Before concluding his testimony, Walter said, "I am thoroughly convinced that the most we could hope for this term is four additional seats. Anything above this would face rough sledding and would not likely pass."

Rep. Frank Chelf, D-Ky., who, like Walter, is a member of the judiciary committee, gave a dramatic presentation in his bid to increase the number of seats to 469.

The Kentucky called Walter "the finest gentleman in America, and one of the greatest legislators in America." He said he was sorry he had to disagree with his colleague "for the first time."

Walter's testimony was clear, concise, forceful, and he gave the most objective reasons for any of the increases.

Many of the proposals which had asked for a higher number of additional seats were tinged with politics in that they were obvious attempts to insure certain seats that are scheduled for elimination.

In the proposal to grant 469 seats, Pennsylvania would get all three seats back. Under the present law, known as the Order of Priority Proportionment law, Pennsylvania would get seats 438, 452, and 469.

Reds' New Blockade Threat Brings Sharp U.S. Warning

U. S. Note:

Keep Routes Open Or Face Consequences

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States solemnly warned the Soviet Union Thursday to keep its hands off the access routes to West Berlin.

Reacting promptly to a Soviet note of Wednesday, the White House said "any interference by the Soviet government or its East German regime with free access to West Berlin would be an aggressive act for the consequences of which the Soviet government would bear full responsibility."

The statement, approved by President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk, used unusually strong words and called the latest Soviet note a step "in a deliberate campaign of deception and attempted intimidation."

Soviet Note
The Soviet note accused the West of a "flagrant breach" of agreements on access routes to Berlin and charged that "all kinds of extremists, saboteurs, and spies" are smuggled into the city through these routes.

These charges are false, the White House statement said. Pierre Salinger, Kennedy's press secretary, stressed that while the statement is not a formal reply it represents the views of the U.S. government.

The statement labeled Soviet accusations "an act of cynicism and irresponsibility" and continued: "The slanderous remarks of the Soviet government about the legitimate activities of free men in West Berlin suggests that somehow the Soviet government supposes the United States to share the Soviet view that subversion to dictatorship is the proper mode of German life."

Aggression Threat
"These charges and allegations can thus not be taken seriously," White House said.

What must be taken seriously, the statement continued, is the "scarcely veiled threat of aggression" against the Allied air routes to and from West Berlin.

Before the White House issued the statement, the State Department restated Western thinking on rights to access to the beleaguered city.

The Allies, department spokesmen Lincoln White said, have "absolute and inherent rights to unhindered routes of access" to Berlin.

Specifically Rossetti refused to say whether he runs a big horse race telephone wire service which radiates from Boston to Montreal, Canada, in the north and Miami, Fla., in the south.

Jerome S. Adlerman, subcommittee counsel, asked Rossetti when he had decided to invoke the Fifth Amendment but the witness refused to say.

He likewise refused to answer, "on grounds it might tend to incriminate me," when asked about his occupation. He even refused to say whether his friends call him "Munge," which Adlerman pronounced "Mungy."

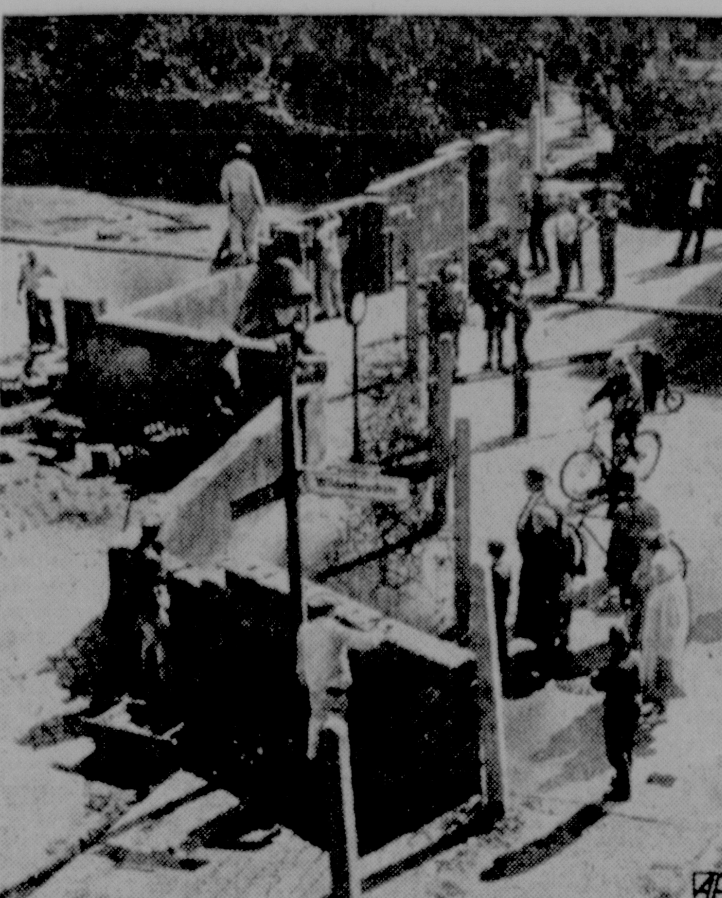

"As far as my name is concerned, I do not recognize that name," Rossetti said.

"I answered that my name was Angelo Rossetti."

That, plus the fact that he lives in East Boston, was about the only information he gave the committee.

Rossetti, a short, heavy man in a gray summer suit, watched impassively as Adlerman traced on a map what he described as a wire service network running from Boston to Montreal; Manchester, N.H.; Lawrence, Mass.; Providence, R.I.; Philadelphia; Wilmington, Del.; Atlantic City, N.J.; Baltimore and Miami.

Offshoots were shown running to Worcester, Mass.; Hartford, Conn.; Pottsville, Pa.; Steubenville and Cincinnati, Ohio; and New Orleans, La.

Talkative Bookie Clams Up During Gambling Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The long-distance pay phones in gambler Angelo Rossetti's Boston office banged away so busily, Senate investigators were told Thursday that the telephone company had to empty the coin boxes every other day.

That information came from a staff investigator after Rossetti invoked the Fifth Amendment at a hearing of the Senate Investigations subcommittee.

The subcommittee is investigating ties between race wire news services, which are legal, and handbook betting, which is illegal.

Rossetti's reticence apparently came as a surprise to Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., the subcommittee chairman. McClellan remarked he had understood the Boston witness intended to answer questions.

Through a series of questions which Rossetti refused to answer, Adlerman sought to show the witness was operating the race wire service, known as P. H. P. News Service, in the absence of the real owner, Frank Ferrara.

Reds May Cut West's Vital Travel Links

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has declared West Germany has no rights in West Berlin and in effect threatened to cut the Western powers' travel links that join them.

A Soviet note Thursday told the United States, Britain and France that they must end "unlawful and provocative activities" for which the note held the West German government responsible.

The communication left in doubt exactly what action the Soviet Union proposes to take. But Western diplomats here took it to mean that Moscow intends to demand restriction of the movement of Germans, and conceivably try to end the flight of Western airlines into Berlin.

The note was delivered to the Western powers Wednesday and made public Thursday. In it the Soviet Union charged that spies and agitators are riding the Western air corridors into the divided city. It accused the Western Allies of laxity in controlling the aerial routes.

The Soviet note also accused the United States, Britain and France of a "flagrant breach of the agreement" of 1945 which provided for the supplying of Allied occupation garrisons in West Berlin.

The note asserted that the Western powers had allowed the air routes to be taken over "for subversive and revanchist (revenge-seeking) purposes of West German militarism."

Western diplomats here feared the protest may herald a Soviet campaign to throw up still another Berlin barrier to seal off routes left untouched by travel restrictions imposed in recent weeks.

Rights Absolute
(A U.S. spokesman said Western aerial rights are absolute and inherent and provide for unhindered routes of access. The British denied any West German provocations. The French termed the note a "particularly grave" development.)

Diplomats took the protest as an indication of demands likely to be raised by the Soviet Union at proposed talks on Berlin.

An effective Communist aerial blockade would close off the major escape hatch of East German refugees able to evade the brick, concrete and barbed wire barriers already confronting them in Berlin. The Soviet Union also presumably could demand the right to screen out passengers flying into West Berlin.

The note charged that "revanchists, extremists, saboteurs and spies" from West Germany were being allowed into West Berlin. There "all kinds of provocations" against the Communist bloc is directed, it said.

West Berlin, it held, "does not form any part of the Federal Republic of Germany (West German) and it cannot fall within the competence of its authorities." It said that what it called the West's connivance in this connection has increased recently.

The note omitted mention of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's visit last weekend to West Berlin, but it protested the arrival there of "official representatives of the Bundestag and government" of West Germany.

With Rallies
"Their coming was accompanied by the organization of rallies and demonstrations at which slogans calling for aggression against peace-loving neighboring states and for suppression of the democratic forces of West Berlin were openly proclaimed," it continued.

"The stepping up of the machinations of the ruling circles of the FGR (Federal Republic of Germany) in West Berlin bears evidence to their striving to deliberately increase tension in this area in order to cause complications and conflicts, to try to bring about a clash between the Western powers and the Soviet Union to the advantage of West German militarists and revenge-seekers."

"And all this is taking place in plain view and with the blessing of the occupation authorities of the three powers in West Berlin."

Area Guards Not Affected By New Call

WASHINGTON (AP)—The possibility of an early autumn call-up to federal service for some of the alerted National Guard units developed Thursday.

In a further expansion of its mobilization plans, the Army started sending out notices to some members of the million-man reserve pool, telling them they had been designated for service in National Guard units which may be federalized.

Company "A" of East Stroudsburg is not included among the 37 units on alert. The Monroe County National Guard unit has not been notified of any plans to reactivate for federal military duty.

Serum Treats, Prevents The Disease

Vital Discovery Reported In Fight Against Cancer

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A Cleveland scientist disclosed Thursday he has isolated a virus that he believes causes cancer in humans.

Dr. Sergio de Carvalho, said he had experimented with cancers in leukemia patients, and patients with tumors of the breast, brain, lung and ovaries.

In Detroit, the Detroit News said Dr. de Carvalho and others working in cooperation with Parke, Davis & Co. scientists developed a serum which reportedly can be used to treat and prevent cancer and leukemia in animals.

The newspaper quoted the scientists as saying the serum was tested in animals and "following success in the use of the anti-cancer, anti-leukemia serum in animals, human tests now are under way and, although preliminary indications are encouraging, it will be several years before conclusive findings can be reached."

Dr. de Carvalho, speaking at Pittsburgh, said he extracted from human cancer a virus he was able to grow in tissue culture and which subsequently caused cancer in animals.

This may be compared to the growing in tissue culture (cells) of any infectious virus such as polio and rabies. Once the virus has been grown and can be produced in quantity, it may be possible to produce vaccine and immune sera. This would be a long stride against cancer but much research lies ahead.

Reports Find
Dr. de Carvalho, director of cancer research with Rand Development Corp., reported his findings at the 19th annual meeting of the Electron Microscope Society of America.

He has been working closely with Dr. Alton Taylor of Parke, Davis & Co., a Detroit pharmaceutical firm. Dr. Taylor, along with Dr. Joseph Boggs of Chicago, reported a new vaccine against hepatitis at the American Medical Assn. meeting in New York in June.

With Dr. Taylor, at Thursday's meeting, they showed electron microscopy pictures of virus particles growing in human tissue culture. Human tissue culture is amniotic cells, obtained from the sac of human babies delivered by cesarean section.

The virus particles were seen in two forms—one, as tiny dots alone, and the other as a tiny dot surrounded by a protein coat.

Infectious Part
Dr. de Carvalho explained that the dot consisted of ribonucleic acid (rna). This is the infectious part of the virus. After entering the cells it manufactures its own protein coat and takes control of the cell division by producing abnormal proteins.

In general, viruses are known to cause many cancers in animals. Animals have been infected with the viruses taken from animal cancers and a variety of tumors have been grown experimentally in this way.

One virus, the polyoma, causes a wide range of tumors in animals. It is believed that viruses also cause some of the cancers in man. But the difficulty here is in proving that these virus-like particles taken from human cancers are in reality viruses.

Udall Favors Public Power On Compact

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall and Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., disagreed Thursday on the remaining doubtful clause in a proposed interstate compact for development of Delaware River Basin water resources.

Udall strongly recommended to the Senate Public Works Committee an amendment to give public power companies preference over private utilities in any electric power projects the compact might sanction on the river in future years.

Clark said that although he is a public power advocate he did not believe the legislatures and governors of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Delaware would go along with a public power preference clause.

"If it is inserted it will, in my opinion, kill the compact and we will be back where we were 25 years ago, starting all over again," Clark told the committee.

He said the matter of power distribution is not an urgent one now. The question of a preference clause, he said, could be settled if and when Congress undertakes federal aid to specific projects for the river valley.

Clark said under a long-range development program approved by the Army Engineers the first power project in the basin is contemplated for Tocks Island, in the upper river, in 1975. Another such project, and a smaller one—Hawk Mountain, in New York—won't be undertaken until nearly 50 years from now, Clark said.

WATCHING AND WAITING — These two Richmond, Ind., police officers, Collins Dickerson (left), and John Geiger, are spending a harrowing week as they wait to see if they are to become victims of spinal meningitis. They administered mouth-to-mouth respiration to one-month-old Mark Green, who had stopped breathing. The infant revived but died of spinal meningitis. Doctors say if the officers, who have five children between them, have contracted the disease, it will show up by today. They're taking antibiotic drugs but can do nothing but wait.

PP&L Plans To Send 12 To A-Parley

PENNSYLVANIA Power & Light Company will sponsor six high school science students and six science teachers to the forthcoming third national Youth Conference on the Atom, it was announced yesterday by Charles E. Oakes, PP&L board chairman and chief executive officer.

The conference will be held in Chicago on Nov. 9, 10 and 11. Purpose of the conference is "to present to a group of the nation's high school science students and teachers an authoritative and inspiring picture of the promise of the peaceful atom in its various applications, and to help advance interest in the study of science in the United States."

It is expected to attract more than 500 students and teachers from 38 states. This will be the third time that PP&L has sponsored delegates.

The PP&L delegation will be a representative group consisting of one student and one teacher from each of the utility's six divisions. Students are chosen on the basis of demonstrated ability and intensive interest in science. Local school districts are cooperating with PP&L in the selection of teachers.

The Youth Conference, sponsored by the nation's investor-owned electric utilities, will have as its featured speaker Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the United States Atomic Energy Commission.

Weather Still Stalls Glider Pilot

BAD weather still stalled glider pilot Bob Fisher Thursday, further delaying completion of his flight from Seattle, Wash.

His goal is only 60 miles away—Long Island, or the alternate landing spots of Atlantic City or Linden, N. J.

Fisher set down in Stroudsburg earlier this week during poor weather which hit the area.

Tad Should Run

We were pleased to read an Associated Press story out of Washington last week which indicates that Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Pa., may change his mind about seeking reelection to the House of Representatives, where he has so ably represented the area including Monroe County for the past 30 years.

Walter said shortly after the opening of the 87th Congress in January that he would retire at the end of the current session. That affirmed a statement he made to Democratic leaders of the 15th Congressional District late last year that he would not seek reelection in 1962.

Tad, as he is known to most of his friends in this area, based his decision not to seek reelection on an asthmatic condition, which he said bothered him in a damp climate like Washington's.

Since then, however, Walter has had physical checkups by his own physician and by a team from the National Institutes of Health at Bethesda, Md., both of which gave him a clean bill of health.

One of the five doctors who examined him, in fact, indicated it might be detrimental to Tad's health if he gave up his activities after so many years of keeping busy. His asthma is being treated with a new type of inhaler.

Walter's contributions to this area are too numerous and too well known to require listing here. The most recent example was his almost singlehanded fight to make the federal government a full partner in the Delaware River Basin Compact.

The federal funds which have been channeled into this area through new highway construction, new postoffices and other buildings and facilities are also an example of how well he has represented all of us.

Walter's seniority in the House is something that should not be considered lightly. He is chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee and a powerful member of other influential committees.

His service has been recognized, not only by the fact that he has been reelected to 15 consecutive terms in the House, but by the honors accorded him by foreign governments for his work in the field of immigration.

We sincerely hope he is reconsidering his previous decision to retire. His health, of course, must be considered first. But we think the best place for a healthy Tad Walter is right where he is now—in Washington as representative of Pennsylvania's 15th District.

Great Victory For The Schools

Out of the travail of the school scandal and all the political argumentation, a great victory has been won for the schools.

With the enactment of State Education Commissioner Allen's reform program, the people of New York City can now look ahead to new vigor and leadership in our schools.

The first thing is that we are getting rid of the old Board of Education. This is a cancellation of accumulated mediocrity, incompetence and political subservience.

In place of the bureaucratic regime, dictated by everything save first-class performance, the school board is hereafter to be chosen in effect by a representative citizens' panel of the highest order.

This obviously is insurance that the new Board of Education will comprise the best in civic quality, devotion to schools and dedication to the community's highest interests. Our educational policy-makers will no longer be picked by politics and every other known consideration but that of superior ability.

We are, in short, returning the direction of the schools to the people who have been too long absent from leadership of New York's life. And who can doubt that this will stimulate the metropolitan stream, quicken a universal interest in education, turn out better results in the schools, and build a finer city? Perhaps all this won't come at once.

There has been a lot of apathy, ignorance and worse about the schools for close to a generation—say, since Fiorello La Guardia's day.

But a new independent regime, freed of politics and such, determined on getting a school system second to none, seeking out the best administrators and methods, can be expected to stir immediately a boundless enthusiasm in classrooms and homes.

This, then, is the great victory that the schools—children, teachers and people—have won. It has taken a great upheaval to get started, for which no credit to Mayor Wagner.

But we are at least moving out of the old morass.

—New York Herald Tribune

Feelings Running High In Legislature

By Mason Denison Harrisburg—Reporter's Notebook

The Smokepot Smoketh — Feelings unquestionably were running high in the legislative henhouse on Capitol Hill this week as lawmakers with bettled brow and flexing double chins gazed intently in the direction of the gubernatorial den.

When lawmakers returned to Capitol Hill early in the week the smokepots were going full blast as they teed off one after the other—Democratic administration legislative leaders as well—in the direction of the mahogany doors barring the passageway between their legislative sanctum and that of the executive branch. The legislative booming developed following last week's remarks by Mr. Lawrence at his press conference that he thought the current drag-out session of the Legislature (among other things) was a "great waste of time."

Perhaps the curious part about all this is that when the Governor made his smokepot-igniting remarks ("the whole system is wrong, gentlemen"), the Governor more or less made the comment in an offhand manner, somewhat mildly—and involving less than 70 words. . . . Gubernatorial aides were flabbergasted this week when word of the screaming going on in legislative halls reached their ears—all of which points up the fact quite succinctly that you never know what's going to happen when you open your mouth on Capitol Hill.

There is this much about it in all fairness: Lawmakers in this session—seemingly—have come in for considerably more lambasting from all sides than at any time in recent years. . . . Much of it has been justified, but—no matter how prejudiced one may be, the fact actually remains that this session they're not a pack of "hoods," the overall quality is much better than many a past session and most are trying to do a decent job. . . . There are always a few squirrels in every henhouse—which sets the negative tenor for the entire group. . . . The current session is no exception on this score!

Legislative Exactness — When the State Senate this week confirmed the appointment of former Attorney General Anne X. Alper to the State Supreme Court to fill the interim (to January 1) vacancy caused by the resignation last month of Chief Justice Charles Alvin Jones, two "precision" moves were made by the upper chamber:

(1) — The confirmation took place on Monday exactly three weeks to the day (Monday July 31) when her name was submitted to the Senate originally by the Governor for confirmation.

(2) — The 34-14 vote of confirmation was exactly the 34 votes needed under the two-thirds confirmation requirement.

Why the delay (actually it wasn't an abnormal "delay"), other than the election is so near and the end of the session not too distant in the confirmation? . . . Administration Democrats have only 25 "sure" votes (the same number as their Republican counterparts) in the evenly divided Senate—and administration Democrats could not move the nomination formally until the checkered "go ahead" flag was flapped by other-side-of-the-fence Senate Republicans. . . . There was some fingerling biting.

Welcome To "The Mound" — For the first time in many a moon a new and vastly more expensive pamphlet describing Pennsylvania's State Capital has just been issued for visitors to Capitol Hill. . . . It's a double-page, three-fold affair about 8x3 1/2 inches complete with aerial photo map of Capitol Hill, pictures of the ornate chambers of the House and Senate, plus an amazing compilation of pertinent contemporary and historical information.

Off The Record

By Bob Clark

J. Edgar Hoover says the highlight of his life was the time J. Harlan Fiske Stone, United States Supreme Court Justice, named him head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The names Hoover and Stone hit home in this territory. J. Edgar is a very good friend of Dr. David Shulman, Stroudsburg RD counsellor of good food, while Stone is a close relative of Harlan Stone, former reporter for the Daily Record. It's a small world, isn't it?

Speaking about former Daily Record staffers, Bob Stewart is employed on the Harrisburg Patriot-News. Stewart left the Record for a position with the Lancaster Intelligencer and then moved on to the state capital.

By the way, his Penn State colleagues will be happy to know he sees the Nittany Lions going unbeaten this fall.

Bob Stauffer, another State alumnus, was in town for a few days looking over farm projects of 4-H groups.

Stauffer took in a program in the West End and despite inclement weather liked what he saw.

Bob was stationed in the Stroudsburg not too long ago at the Monroe Agricultural Extension office.

Pearl Gardner who formerly operated Gardner's Restaurant on Foxtown Hill, was in town for a week's visit earlier this month.

Mrs. Gardner now operates the cafeteria and coffee shop for the psychiatric branch of University of Pennsylvania Hospital in Philadelphia.

She was proudly telling friends that she lost 50 pounds in two months. At least one person who has known her for at least 10 years didn't recognize her in the new, slimmer addition until their second meeting.

Ben Cassell lists the three faux pas that lost the beautiful receptionist in his office her job: 1. "Insurance? I'm sure the boss is interested in a new policy. Go right into his private office."

2. "I forgot to tell you yesterday, President Kennedy called from Washington while you were out to lunch and wanted you to call him right back on a very important matter. I guess it just slipped my mind."

3. "I'm sorry, but you can't go in right now, Mrs. Marshall. Your husband is dictating to that new red-headed secretary he hired personally last Monday."

Demo Solons Mad At Bailey Again

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — Democratic National Chairman John Bailey is increasingly getting into hot water with members of his party in Congress and elsewhere, and for a good reason.

They feel that Bailey and his lieutenants are indifferent to their local, but to them highly important, political interests.

Latest explosive instance of that, involving a controversial major Western public power project, is causing much backstage sputtering. Important senators and congressmen are making no bones of their resentment — an attitude decidedly not helping President Kennedy in his strenuous efforts to enact the embattled foreign aid and aid-to-education measures.

Some of the lawmakers are irately talking of taking this National Committee episode directly to the President.

One reason is that a number of them recently spent an evening bluntly berating Bailey personally for ignoring their political problems, apparently without making much dent on him and his assistants.

One the other hand, when Senator Pat McNamara, Mich., protested to the President about the appointment of a former Republican State Chairman to a federal judgeship, McNamara was immediately assured "that will be taken care of"—and it has been. The appointment is now buried in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Cause of the latest backstage ruckus is a curt brush-off Deputy Chairman Charles Roche gave a Colorado delegation that sought Chairman Bailey's support to put through Congress a $14 million grant for the Colorado River Water Storage Project.

The money is for a network of transmission lines to link rural electric co-ops and public power developments in Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona.

Former Interior Secretary Fred Seaton recommended this project, and President Eisenhower included it in his final budget. President Kennedy and his Budget Director fully reaffirmed that.

Private utilities are vehemently opposing the transmission line project.

Although it has received little public attention, this private versus public power clash is one of the hottest on Capitol Hill.

How To Lose Votes — Several score Colorado small businessmen, ranchers and REA officials came to Washington to button-hole lawmakers in behalf of the strongly beleaguered $14 million appropriation.

They were advised to get National Chairman Bailey to help them, particularly as the Administration is for the project.

A small delegation was sent to call on him. They were told Bailey was "out," and were referred to Deputy Chairman Roche — former Boston Newsman and publicity agent. In the 1960 campaign, he handled press relations for the "Citizens for Kennedy-Johnson Committee."

Apparently as a reward for these labors, he was recently named Deputy National Chairman. But to the Colorado delegation, he quickly made it clear he knew little about their project — and cared less.

Obviously bored, Roche listened to them with ill-concealed indifference. Finally one of the delegates, a well-to-do rancher, exploded.

"This is an Administration project," he hotly told Roche. "It was started by the Eisenhower Administration, and President Kennedy thought so much of it that he included it in his budget. A great many voters are interested in this project that directly affects the future development of three states. Now if you people here aren't . . ."

"Look," snapped Roche, "you people weren't for us in 1960, so why should we do anything for you now?"

"Mr. Roche, if you were a smart politician," was the retort, "you would know two things. Never chew over old elections, and there are always new elections coming up. There is an election in 1962, and another in 1964. You may find that in both of them you would like very much to have our help."

With that, the delegates picked up their hats and walked out — to indignantly relate their experience to congressional friends.

Note: At Chairman Bailey's disconcerting dinner meeting several weeks previous, Senator Ernest Gruening, Alaska, caustically told him, "The way the Administration is acting in my state, it is apparently not interested in electing Democrats. And it won't, if it keeps on as it is."

Politicians — Republican leaders think National Chairman William Miller did so well in his TV debate with Democratic Chairman Bailey that they are urging these encounters be put on a monthly basis. Following the debate, Miller received 357 letters and $427 in contributions, although he did not ask for funds. Bailey says he got 986 responses with $7,264 in contributions. . . . Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., usually has breakfast on Monday with Senator George Aiken, Vt., leader of Republican liberals. They have long been personal friends, and at these weekly get-togethers talk over legislative affairs. . . . Friends of former Secretary of State Dean Acheson are presenting a bronze bust of him to former President Truman's Library in Independence, Mo. The bust was sculptured by Miss Eleanor Plath, N.Y., on a commission from Acheson's friends.

Some Critics Are Human

Chips on a Shoulder

Bing Crosby zing'd: "I think some of the magazine reviews emanating from New York are written to make the reviewers look good. Certain critics frequently lambaste pictures which have entertained me, and I'm a pretty tough audience. Apparently they never give any film a good review unless it was made in Italy with a Brownie camera — in the streets."

Critics, Bing may be astonished to learn, are human and some are incompetent. However, by and large, performers would rather receive praise from an incompetent critic than a sour notice from a competent one.

Recess Until Aug. 30

Ronson, Union Resume Talks

UNION officials of International Association of Machinists met yesterday in Delaware Water Gap Country Club with representatives of Ronson Corporation of Pennsylvania and reopened negotiations in their labor dispute which caused employees to go out on strike 14 days ago.

Union and management didn't come to any terms yesterday but the door was left open for another session Wednesday at the Water Gap Country Club, Delaware Water Gap.

Editor's Note — By the time the next conference takes place, striking employees will have been on strike 19 days). Bob Carter, grand lodge representative of Local 1724, International Association of Machinists, Stroudsburg, said:

"The major issue is the pension plan offered by the union. It will pay $80 a month to members of the union who retire with 25 years of service."

"During this, the 18th meeting between management and union since the contract expired on June 1, Ronson took the position that they did not want the IAM pension plan but they did not present any plan of their own," Carter continued.

"Dummy Plan"

He added, "They (Ronson) wanted to start new from a 'dummy plan' and talk item for item as they felt it should be."

Later in the negotiations a counter proposal was made by the union Carter said.

"The counter proposal by the union was for Ronson to accept the same pension plan in effect in the company-owned plant in Wood Bridge, N. J. with one change. That change being a money change to correspond to the $80 per month retirement benefit to the employees at the Delaware Water Gap plant."

"When confronted with the counter proposal," Carter said, "they (Ronson) told the negotiation committee that they were not familiar with it, and requested a recess until Wed., Aug. 30. The recess being asked to give consideration and study the Wood Bridge plant plan," he said.

Union was not in agreement with the request for the recess and objected to the move. However, the date for the next meeting was set by Federal Mediator, Walter Mosi and Pennsylvania Mediator, Anthony Andriole. The meeting will be held in the Delaware Water Gap Country Club on Aug. 30 beginning at 11 a.m.

Carter said, "As the meeting came to an end I charged the company with negotiating in bad faith as they had no plan to offer at the bargaining table and had two weeks to ready themselves to present a plan."

"Progress Made"

Gerald Brodsky, plant manager, was contacted for a statement from management.

He said, "Progress has been made at the negotiations of August 24th. The union indicated it would consider pension plans other than the International Association of Machinists Union pension plan."

"Ronson has stated that under this set of circumstances they will now submit a pension plan on Wednesday which it hopes will resolve the issue."

Barehand Line Repair Showing

THE recently developed technique of working with bare hands on live, high-voltage transmission lines will be demonstrated for PP&L representatives on Friday. The demonstration will be staged by the Holan Corp., manufacturers of the equipment.

A discussion of the technique at PP&L's Lehigh division service center, accompanied by motion pictures and slides, will precede the demonstration. Holan men will then perform two actual barehand operations on live power lines in the vicinity of U. S. Routes 22 and 309, just outside of Allentown.

The demonstration is part of a PP&L inquiry to determine the technique's feasibility for certain applications on the local utility's system. The company presently owns six trucks equipped with the bucket-type rigs that are essential to the operation.

Some 50 PP&L representatives are expected to be on hand on Friday, including Mr. Jack K. Busby, president of the local utility; officials of the company's engineering and operating departments; safety officials and division superintendents and line general foremen from each of PP&L's six divisions. Officials of several neighboring utilities have also been invited.

'Queen 'Born' In Sciota

By JEFF COX
Daily Record Reporter

SCIOTA—It's a wonderful thrill for a girl to know she's pretty, and even more wonderful to have it verified by winning a beauty contest.

Donna Bak, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Bak, Sciota, won the Miss Saylor's Lake Contest on Saturday night.

On Saturday, August 12, the contest—sponsored by the Saylor's Lake Fishing Association—started. The first division was the bathing suit contest, which was won by Kathy Wescoe, Clearfield. Donna and Marsha Brooke, Bethlehem, tied for runner-up.

Last Saturday in the upstairs ballroom of the lake pavilion, the evening gown contest was held, and Donna took that division. The previous Monday there had been a beach party, and the girls chose Miss Congeniality, which was Frances Thomas, of Allentown.

A panel of four judges, including a former model and area radio representatives, decided the outcome.

Stroud Union Student

Donna was crowned Saturday night by Marcella Landry, Saylorsburg, last year's queen. As queen she received a two and a half foot trophy and smaller trophies for the bathing suit and evening gown contests. She also received the crown and two dozen roses.

"I was so surprised," Donna said last night, "because I was one of the youngest. I wasn't nervous on stage, though, because I'm a ham and I love it on stage. I intend to be an actress."

Donna will be a sophomore in Stroud Union High School this fall. She is five feet, four inches tall, weighs 118 pounds, and has green eyes and blonde hair.

She Sat-And Got Stuck!

Dear Abby: I am so upset I can hardly write. Last night I was asked to baby-sit for some people who have two children, 6 and 8. I came at 6:00 p.m. and gave the children their supper, bathed them and put them in their beds. The parents didn't come back until 3:00 the next morning. The lady gave me two dollars.

I am no teen-ager, Abby. I am an adult woman with many years' experience caring for a home and children. I was so hurt I couldn't think straight at the time. I even drove my own car there and back. Is it too late to speak up now? What should I say?

Everyone in the family has been trying to break us up. What is our crime? We want to get married, Abby. They say it is against the law in this state. We have been told our children will be born feeble-minded or deformed. Is there any state where we can be married? Please help us.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Lt. Cmdr. Lillian Newbanks may take all those lovely men officers at the Naval Seminar at the college in her stride, but pattering along in her footsteps from breakfast through lunch yesterday morning, I was wide-eyed and impressed. Wow!

I was impressed with Lillian, too, and she made a very pleasant traveling companion. I learned that the new WAVE uniforms are drip dry which simplifies the problem of looking fresh through the whole two weeks; that she hadn't been locked out of the girls' dormitory yet; and that yesterday was the best day of the best seminar she had attended.

We were both too busy to carry on much small talk. Shades of my classroom days, it was fun to sit at a desk again, taking notes and looking at the blackboard. However, as I remember my classmates none of us were quite so brilliant—and that was in the days before group dynamics really made an impact. Nowadays you find panel discussions, symposiums, role playing, buzz sessions and all the rest in PTA meetings, church societies, and women's clubs, and they are all excellent in making an audience active participants rather than passive listeners.

The role playing that started off the morning's activities was really terrific. Assigned a role and the situation with which they are faced, the characters thereupon take off on their own and these four characters were really good.

Maybe not ready for Broadway yet, but I'll bet they'd be a hit at the Wind Gap Theatre. Certainly they stimulated a lot of discussion. I got so interested I was almost tempted to go back in the afternoon to see what they finally decided about the poor CO and whatever happened to Lt. Pike.

However, I'd better begin to worry about what might happen to poor civilian Westbrook if she doesn't get her desk cleared up before vacation next week, the trailer at the river cleaned and stocked for the grand influx of European tourists homeward bound — and, somewhere along the line, a little sleep.

Interest As Officer Overshadows Role Of Lone WAVE In Navy Seminar

By BOBBY WESTBROOK

What started out to be a feature on what it feels like to be the only WAVE in a veritable sea of Navy brass, all male, turned into something quite different.

The facts remain the same: Lieutenant Commander Lillian Newbanks of Trenton, N. J., is the only woman among 80 selected Naval Reserve Officers from all parts of the nation who have been assembled at East Stroudsburg State College for a two weeks' Leadership Training Seminar.

The assignment went as planned: spend a whole morning following LTCR Newbanks around.

The fact that the emphasis shifted from the "woman's angle" to a much more general story was due in large part to the interest aroused by the seminar activities and LTCR Newbanks' own reaction to those activities.

She is undoubtedly feminine. Even at 0700, Navy time, which is 7 a.m. civilian time and seems even earlier on a fog-bound morning, that fact was apparent. It was not only her trim blue and white uniform, high-heeled shoes and perky little hat which made her stand out in the college dining room full of Navy tans. She herself is trim and attractive with blonde hair neatly curled even so early. In civilian life she is guidance counselor for the Trenton Senior High School.

She Can Find Her Hat There are, she admitted over scrambled eggs and coffee, many advantages in being the only woman among so many men. You can count on being the center of attention in many situations. You can find your white-topped hat much more easily than the men who have to pick their own from among 79 others, all looking just alike, which lined the window sills. The men rise when you come to the table but not, thank goodness, when you enter a classroom where you become just another student.

There are a few disadvantages, too, she admitted. For instance, she finds the extracurricular exchange of experiences with other officers often as rewarding as the formal classes. In the men's dormitory, the hall sessions often continue until the early morning.

"It's not that I'm barred from bull sessions," she explained, "and I'm welcome in their quarters for evening programs — but there does come a time when it seems wise to withdraw."

She withdraws into the girls' dormitory across the way, but that is the only time when she feels in the least excluded. Besides being the only woman working with men is by now an old story to her. LTCR Newbanks is Assistant to the Commanding Officer in charge of the Campen Extension Naval Reserve Officers School where she is the only woman on the staff.

Few retired WAVES join the Reserves, she explained, since so many of them marry and have children which precludes them from service.

Her own duties as a Reserve Officer involve attending the weekly Wednesday night drills in Camden, 30 miles away, as well as two weeks of training, which she takes in the Summer.

This Summer's session has been a particularly stimulating one for her, she said. It is precisely here that the "woman's angle" of the story breaks down since her interest and enthusiasm for this particular seminar is shared by many of the officers, and has nothing to do with being a man or a woman.

Pioneers In Pilot Project From their conversation they all seem to be sharing a sense of making history. This is a pilot project and is being observed by high-ranking Naval officials. Depending on their evaluation, the seminar now in session at ESSC may become the model for similar sectional seminars all over the country next Summer.

Capt. Eugene P. Powers, professor of education at ESSC, and Commanding Officer of the Naval Reserve Officers School at Willow Grove, is director of the seminar with Commander Ralph E. Hellstrom, controller of the Philadelphia Naval Base and Fourth Naval District, as assistant.

Its faculty includes college professors, personnel specialists and an attorney. The student body is itself a selected group, chosen to represent the Naval Reserve Districts and to bring their findings back to their own units.

Its stated objective is "to re-emphasize and revitalize interest in Naval Leadership." From the classes and sessions sampled yesterday morning, it also provides a demonstration of how leadership can be developed through new techniques in group dynamics.

Role-playing, case studies, buzz sessions, panel discussions and problem-solving all have their place in the program.

On Thursday morning, for instance, following that 7 a.m. breakfast, the whole group assembled in the college auditorium. Four members of the faculty of the seminar assumed the roles of: a Commanding Officer, a disgruntled student in an International Relations course, his instructor and the training supervisor.

They Brightened Roles The problem they presented was taken from the files of a real situation. The humor, shop talk, and references to common Navy gripes which had their audience in gales of laughter were their own. However, when the assembly broke up into four groups and went to their separate classrooms, the discussion quickly became serious.

In LTCR Newbanks' section, the group devoted the first hour to a definition of the primary problem presented by the play. They chose the "buzz session" technique, dividing into three groups of five persons to discuss and analyze the problems.

The three separate definitions arrived at were compared and a composite definition was agreed upon before the class took its coffee break. The coffee break moved the locale from the classroom to the college dining room, but it failed to break over the coffee cups and between bits of coffee cake. Reassembling the group then set about in the same fashion to work out a solution to the problem they had agreed upon.

Meanwhile, in the classroom next door, the group had adopted a "problem-solving" method rather than the "buzz session." In open meeting, facts from the play were suggested by class members, and the definitions and solutions were arrived at from general discussion.

The results reached by all four groups were to be compared at the close of the afternoon sessions.

Nearing the end of their two weeks of training, LTCR Newbanks feels that the results of their work is now paying off. Everyone has developed not only the techniques of leadership but leadership itself.

What the official evaluation will be remains to be seen; but an informal poll of those attending the seminar give it a high rating. They not only feel that they have learned a great deal, but they've had a good time, too.

The carpetbaggers are coming!—meaning the elegant ladies who will be carrying some of our newest Fall handbags as they swing along Main street or Fifth Avenue. The carpet bags of 1961 are not as huge as the carpet bags of a few years ago . . . nor are they quite as costly. The wooly, colorful designs are actually only the body of the purse which is framed and handled by black Seton leather. They are 10.95, I believe, and an exciting blend of many compatible Fall colors, picking up just about any ensemble tone you might wish.

We are also stocking some smart, businesslike leather bags, important in size and styling, in two big new colors: Tom Brown and Winter Green. And three are impressive tapestry bags, in rich patterns on black, at 7.98, 10.00 and 15.00 plus tax, of course.

Bea Gorgy, our handbag buyer, tells me that she and Carl Rohrbach, of our shoe department are coordinating their wares once again wherever possible. She showed me a magnificent pair of lizard shoes and matching bag in a new, hard to describe, honey-brown shade called Truffle. The handbag is priced at 19.50, shoes at 21.95. Another rich color is Otter Brown, with shoes priced at 11.99 and bag, 7.98.

Seems to me that Bea's selection is so unusual and attractive this year, we should call them HANDBRAGS.

Souvilla Bowman haled me into our lingerie department the other noontime, to say that Cora Albertson has new items galore she'd like me to mention. Actually, you couldn't possibly overlook them if you visited Wyckoff's because their brilliant colors reach right out and literally grab the eyeballs—but in any case, I took some notes and here they are.

The very newest . . . snuggest . . . cuddliest thing in a duster is one that looks like fur. As a matter of fact, it looks so much like those furry boudoir rugs being sold in our floor covering department, I can just picture a manikin wearing one, sprawled atop a matching rug in our front window. They are adorable for the college girl who hopes to appear all feminine and fluffy as she presides over a coke party in her dormitory room or crams for the next exam. There is a brilliant red number as dazzling as the lights on Broadway, and for the more kittenish gal there's a choice of either baby pink or blue. The price is 15.00 and the fabric is a 100% orlon pile by Dupont on a backing of arnel and acetate knit. Fragile as these robes may appear, they are washable in the automatic and can be dried at below 120 degrees in five minutes, with additional fresh air drying if necessary. The sizes are 10 to 20, so they aren't just for the tiny girls but for their larger, equally fashion-conscious sisters.

Betty LaBarre also emphasizes Back to School glamour in the form of jewelry. Styles this year lean heavily toward bulk and glitter with chains being ever-so-popular with the high school and college crowd. At 2.00 plus tax, we offer a big selection of all kinds: —chains that are braided, large linked, or meshlike, many with pendants in the form of a locket resembling a watch, a Good Luck charm, a star either plain or gem-set, or a light weight thingamabob (you name it)—an acorn maybe. On the same table are some wonderful abstract pins in textured gold at 2.00 and 3.00, just made for the neckline of a knit or wool dress.

Then, back in lingerie once again, we might dazzle you with the Tent Muu Muu by Schrank with a neckline of bright red flannel and the billowing rest of fine corduroy in blazing red, white, green, and yellow stripes, sizes S, M, and L, at 6.00 with matching flannellette pajamas, sizes 32 to 38, at the same price . . . More subdued in color, but in bold plaid nonetheless, are Youth-eme's cotton flannel pajamas of red, black and white or blue, gold, and white, sizes 10 to 18 at 5.98, with matching dusters at 6.00. Also the same company's pretty ski pajamas, with fitted crew neckline of knit, sizes 32 to 38 at 6.00, and Schrank's giddy-print Cardigan Sweater Pajamas of flannellette, 32 to 38, at 6.00. Warm, cozy, soft as a bunny's tail, but all so gay who'll SLEEP in 'em?

AT EASE—Lt. Cmdr. Lillian Newbanks of Trenton, N. J., blends in with the boys in the chow line or in the classroom where interest in the pilot seminar which closes today has run high throughout the two-week session. Capt. Powers is leading the line as they file through the college cafeteria. (Staff photos by MacLeod)

Use Big 2nd Inning

Phillies Beat Chicago 7-4,
Match Longest Win Mark

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A six-run second inning, featured by Don Demeter's three-run homer, paced the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs Thursday night. It was the third straight win for the last-place Phils, matching their long-est winning streak of the season. Jim Owens, beaten eight straight times since winning his first start of the season June 26, was the winner although he needed help from Don Ferrarese in the eighth. Ferrarese came on in the eighth with two on and none out and retired the Cubs without a run scoring.

Big Explosion
The Phils exploded for their biggest inning since July 4 against southpaw Jackie Curtis (8-9). Frank Herrera singled, Tony Gonzalez walked and, after a forceout, Clay Dalrymple singled home a run.

Owens then squeezed home another, Tony Taylor singled for a third and, after Bobby Malkmus walked, Demeter led the first pitch into the upper deck for his 14th homer and fifth in nine games.

The fifth-seeded men's team of veteran Gardner Mulloy of Miami, Fla., and Australian Bob Mark had first-set trouble before eliminating Dave Reed of Glendale, Calif., and Henry Kamaoka of Honolulu, Hawaii, in a second round match, 1-6, 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

Vanderbilt Will Leave Millions

NEW YORK (AP) — George Vanderbilt III made a will disposing of his multimillion-dollar estate dated only one day before he plunged 10 stories to his death from a San Francisco hotel suite, it was disclosed Wednesday.

A probate application made Wednesday shows the will, filed in a surrogate's court, as dated June 23.

The following day, Vanderbilt, 47, dependent over ill health, died in a 150-foot suicide leap from his rooms at the Mark Hopkins Hotel.
